The Ford Tribune libel suit may possibly be decided before the peace treaty is signed.

It is suggested by the Minneapolis Tribune that if the Italian peace delegation would take an undergraduate course in the Japanese school of diplomacy it might get away with the Flume affair after all.

The Mexican ambassador protests against Mr. Gillett's reference to Mexico as an "impediment." The Chicago Tribune moves that the word be stricken out and "damned nuisance" substituted.

Chairman Cummings says he has ironed out the differences between the democratic factions in Missouri, and all is lovely once more. He did it by striking Senator Reed's name from the party rolls.

One of the things Mr. Burleson most regrets in turning the wires back to the owners so soon is that he has not had time to demonstrate that he can send a letter through the mails with the same dispatch he can transmit a telegram.

According to The Atlanta Constitution an administration congressman promised to apologize for suggesting government control of the wirelines, but nobody seems inclined to apologize for Burleson.

Twenty-one governors will call special sessions of the legislature to vote on the ratification of the suffrage amendment. Evidently they do not want to take chances on what the regular session of the next legislature might do on the question.

If a dispatch to the Philadelphia North Americans is true, the kaiser is to escape trial for his crimes through the intervention of the American and Japanese representatives. Speaking for the Americans Secretary Lansing is reported as having taken the position that the fathers of this country made out for us, and which has proved such a signal success.

DOUBTFUL COMPANY

In commenting on the league of nations and the answers made by Mr. Taft to certain pertinent questions Davis Lowe, a newspaper writer of note, has this to say in The Wichita Beacon about our new partners which the league proposes to bring into the firm:

"Mr. Taft, Mr. Wilson, and others tell us that we must become a world power, as it were not that already. They tell us that we must go into the melting pot of internationalism. That we must enter into slavery, as it were. They are dangling before our eyes that gaunt, bony, skeletal of greater imperialism that calcified the eyes of the German Kaiser and brought dismemberment and ruin to three of the oldest and greatest empires of modern Europe—Germany, Austria and Russia."

"Let us get acquainted with our companions, King, master and partners in the adhesion to us. The League of Nations embarks us in. And remember that they will not be silent or side partners either, for that great universal guardian of democracy, our distinguished press agent, claims that they can have absolute equality with the same great powers in the world, and achievements on land and sea, answer the spirit of that Reich which prompts him to save the cause of the world, the interests and joys of the known and unknown world may rest in His hands."

A Texas who is preparing to go to New York and some of the most famous names in the country are invited to wait until the last minute before leaving, being assured that the world may rest in His hands.

We are driven to the belief that there is no room for him in the present place in the picture of our country, and it is not for him to be simple.
